

Guide to page and pop-out menus

[Draft only: last updated, 7 November 2015]

There are well over 100 web pages (including hidden pages) on survey research topics, with links to dozens of on-line resources or to *.pdf or other files held on the site.

My personal pantheon (of the great and the good in survey research)
1: Survey Analysis Workshop (SPSS)
SPSS Textbooks
Workshop and presentations for ASSESS (SPSS users in Europe)
Developing research projects using survey data
Teaching with Survey Data
Statistical concepts and methods
2: Survey Research Practice
Survey Methods Textbooks
3: Subjective Social Indicators (Quality of Life)
Survey Unit, Social Science Research Council (UK)
Survey Research Unit, Polytechnic of North London

Main menu at left (21 pages) Home page is displayed at entry.

(NB: links below are to sections in this guide).

- 19 Survey Research Unit, Polytechnic of North London
.. where I was Principal Lecturer in Sociology and Unit Director, Survey Research Unit (1976 – 92)

.. and (because I have lived here since 1994) some coverage of:

- 20 Village Life in Normandy

Hovering over menus will release pop-out sub-menus (if any) as per the guide below: these happen very fast, especially if your mouse tends to wander!

Clicking on menus will display the appropriate web page. Contents of menu pages are different from contents of any sub-menus, so be sure to read the main menu pages first..

All pages contain hyperlinks to sub-pages, but many pages have hyperlinks to files on hidden pages on this site or to relevant material on other sites. Most of the files on this site are in *.pdf format, either reports, questionnaires etc., or SPSS tutorials, but some are raw data files in *.txt format (from surveys) and others are SPSS syntax, saved or viewer files in *.sps, *.sav, *.spo or *.spv format: some are slide-shows in *.ppt format and one or two are Excel files in *.xlsx format.

To date there are more than 600 pages of SPSS and related tutorials in addition to any information on the web pages themselves.

The first six pages have no sub-pages

The longest chain of pop-outs looks like this:
